Casino's Custom Curves

Clear communication helps meet tough timeline

Oceans Resort Casino in Atlantic City, New Jersey recently installed a beautiful, one-of-a-kind buffet in the VIP Players lounge. Jon Rosky, Project Manager with Corsi Associates NJ, had this to say:

“When we met in my office with Piper and our local Rep, Schmid Dewland Associates, it was explained that the project had a very challenging schedule, but nonetheless needed highly customized, curved counters with sneezeguards, built to the Owner's Interior Designer's specifications. Piper was offered the option to decline due to the schedule, but elected to take on the project and agreed to the schedules. From that point forward, there was frequent and clear communication, several rounds of revision and updates, feedback on finish selections to help meet the schedule and of course detailed coordination of utility needs. The counters were delivered on time, looking great and our client is very happy to have them in place in time for their grand opening of this high end casino hotel VIP Player's Lounge.”

An open line of communication between the client and the designers was vital to the success of this installation. Piper understands this relationship and ensures that all aspects of the design are discussed throughout the process. At Piper, we believe the quality of communication is key to the quality of the product.
